

PUBERTY FOR BOYS

Puberty is the time when your body grows into a man's body.

How does puberty start?

Puberty starts with a change in hormones. Because of a change in hormones related from your brain, your testicles start making testosterone. Testosterone is the main hormone that starts the changes when boys go through puberty.

When does puberty start?

Boys may start puberty as early as 9 years old or as late as 14 years old. Usually it takes 3-4 years for your body to complete puberty.

How do I know puberty has started?

The first thing you may notice is pubic hair. Soon after pubic hairs starts growing in the area around your penis, your penis will get longer and thicker. Your testicles will also get bigger. The testicles make sperm as well as testosterone. They are located in the scrotum, which is the sac of loose skin below the penis. As you mature, the scrotum will hang lower and get looser. In addition to pubic hair, you will start to have hair under your arms and more hair on your legs. You will have more body odor, so you may want to bathe more often or start using deodorant. Your voice will change. This takes awhile. Before your voice gets deeper, it may go through a squeaky period. You may get embarrassed by it, but it usually doesn't last more than 6 months. Testosterone will make your muscles get bigger and stronger even if you don't increase your physical activity.

Towards the end of puberty, you will have a growth spurt. You may grow 4-6 inches taller in 1 year. Your beard will start to grow. Hair may also grow on your chest, stomach, and back.

What are erections?

Boys can get erections (a stiff penis) at any age, but during puberty you start having them more often. Erections usually happen when you have sexual thoughts or physical contact with someone you are attracted to. These things make more blood flow into the penis. You may also have erections without thinking or doing anything. Focusing your attention on something else or doing a different physical activity, like running or taking a cold shower, can help make an erection go away.

What are wet dreams?

As your body is developing, hormones from the brain tell the testicles to make sperm. Your body will make millions of sperm each day. Your body will also make fluid that stores the sperm; this fluid combined with sperm is called semen. Semen can be stored for a while, but after a time it needs to be released. Hormones signal the penis to have an erection and then release the semen. This can happen while you are sleeping. You may have romantic or sexual dreams when it happens and these dreams are called wet dreams. Wet dreams are normal. They can happen a few times a week, a few times a month, or maybe not at all.

What is masturbation?

Masturbating is touching, rubbing, or stroking your penis for pleasure. The penis will get erect and the touching or rubbing may lead to the release of semen. By the early to middle part of puberty, many boys start masturbating. You may masturbate several times a day, once a month, or not at all. It's a natural way to explore your body and is quite normal. People often joke about it, but it's important to know that there are no bad things that happen from masturbating.

What about acne?

Acne is caused by your changing hormones and is a normal part of growing up. Some boys may not have much acne, but for others it may be worse. You can get face washes and creams to treat mild acne without a prescription. If your acne seems to be more serious, talk to your doctor.

What are the emotional changes of puberty?

As you go through puberty, you start to have a lot of different feelings. You are trying to figure out your place in the world, and you become more independent and starting doing things without your parents. You may be influenced by your friends' ideas and feel pressure to do things that you may not agree with, like using drugs or alcohol. This is a time to start sorting out your values and decide what is right or wrong.

As part of this, you may start having strong sexual urges. You may have romantic feelings for someone and start dating. You may feel like you are in love one day and not the next. It's natural to have feelings that change quickly. You may start thinking about having sex. Take time to think through your decision before you have sex. You need to think about the physical and emotional risks you will be taking. You could get a girl pregnant or you could get an infection from sex. The only way to prevent pregnancy or a sexually transmitted disease 100% of the time is to not have sex.

If you decide to have sex, talk to your partner about birth control. Latex condoms are a form of birth control that helps prevent pregnancy and also protects you from some infections.

Who can I talk to about these changes?

Try talking to your parents or other adults about your questions or concerns. Parents can be your best resource and strongest support, but you may feel distanced from them or uncomfortable talking with them; they may feel the same way. Remember that your culture, music, and clothing styles are different from what your parents are used to. Your parents may not seem to be in touch with your world, but they really want to know what you are feeling and going through. If you feel like your parents don't understand your needs, talk to them about it and ask them if you can spend more time together. You may also be able to talk with your doctor, a trusted relative, friend, or teacher about the changes you are going through.
